

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

Assays for screening potential drugs or agents that can interact and potentially bind to cation channel proteins, and potentially have uses in treating conditions related to the function of cation channel proteins is provided, along with prokaryotic cation channel
5 proteins mutated to mimic eukaryotic cation channels, which can then be used in assays of the present invention.